April conscripts, Flandin told the chamber, will have their term of service lengthened by decree to 18 months, and others thereafter until 1940 will serve two years. Professional soldiers, now numbering 103,000, also will be increased, under the terms of the bill. Blum, in his vigorous attack on the measure, challenged the premier's assertion that lengthening of service will be only temporary, declaring it only preparation for permanent two year service and an entirely professional army.

Flandin said France had only 278.

FUNDS FOR NAVY

Construction of New Vessels Voted by House of LONDON, March 15 .- (A)-The British government's plans to 3,500,000 pounds (approximately $16,-000,000) on its naval establishments in 1935 sailed serenely through the house of commons today on the wings of a 158-to-48 vote of approval.

Estimates for the entire naval program totaling 60,050,000 pounds (about $286,000,000) provide for the cluding three 9,000-ton cruisers, and for the repair and modernization of existing craft. The house defeated an amendment which sought a reduction of 2,000 men which sought a reduction of 2,000 men in the navy personnel now fixed at 94,482. The vote was 155 to 35. Sir Bolton Eyres-Monsell, first lord of the admiralty, told the house Great Britain had so reduced the numbers of its naval vessels it could not contemplate further reduction but was anxious for an international agreement to limit their size.

WASHINGTON. March 15.—(R)—

Quick denials tonight greeted the latest sensation of William B. Shearer, enthusiastic big navy lobbyist—an assertion that nine present or former senators had communistic affiliations.

A letter Shearer had written in 1929 was produced before the senate munitions committee, which earlier had heard him deny that he had threatened to kill a shipbuilder, saying that of 14 who had voted against a cruiser appropriation, nine were so a cruiser appropriation, nine were so listed by the justice department.

The 14 included Secretary Swanson, the late Senator Robert M. La Follette, and of present members, Ashurst, of Arizona; McKellar, of Tennessee; Frazier, of North Dakota; Wheeler, of Montana; Norris, of Nebraska, and Shipstead, of Minnesota.

in business" is a good and necessary thing.

Coming from one who stands so high in the business councils of the nation that he has been thrice elected head of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, his assertion challenged immediate attention.

Addressing the Washington Board of Trade, he minced no words. He departed from the views traditionally expressed by businessmen in these phrases:

"Is government in business to stay, and are we really trending toward a greater degree of government regulation of business? Much as I may regret it, my fear is that it is.

"The greater intrusion of government in business does not," in my judgment, mean necessarily the passing of individual initiative. It should never mean the dead level of socialism or communism. It should never mean equality in the division of goods and services.

RUMORS WASHINGTON, March 15 .- The AAA would like to start a campaign to plow under every third rumor. The latest one which has sprung up to annoy the officials is the erroneous story that cotton loans might be stopped. This yarn is supposed to have been largely responsible for the recent break in the cotton market. The administration has investigated to learn started it and has a fair idea of the identity of the culprits,

The treasury may advance AAA funds for payments on contracts and then reimburse itself later from processing tax receipts. Therefore the AAA can pay until the treasury itself runs dry.

BONFIRES The business of rumor-spreading is not confined to marketeers. Whenever any particular group cannot find out what the New Deal is going to do on an issue, it usually invents a rumor that the administration will do such-and-such. This fictitious story arouses administration officials, who then announce what their real course will be. The fictitious story merely acts as a bonfire to smoke the As a result, there are generally more rumors in Washington than

The truth seems to be that the labor group fixed that congressional pipe line for the plumbers. The industry is highly organized. The labor boys knew the provision would guarantee them a union wage scale for plumbers, even if they failed to get the prevailing wage for carpenters, plasterers, etc.

The luxury of the Congressional Record is one which the citizens, if they were aware of the character of the report, might be willing to curtain almost to extinction.

Of course, the members of the lower house would make pathetic objections to any such proposal because, under the restrictions on debate, they are not allowed to say much on the floor. Therefore they use the Record to obtain publicity for themselwes, inserting apeeches which they have written or caused their secretaries to write. The silent orations represent what they would have said if anybody had been interested in hearing from them. The publicity is almost secret, however, because the Record is one of the most stifling bores that the world has ever known and is almost as widely neglected as the legal notices in the daily papers. These mockspeeches do not represent all the nonsense in the Record, though. WASHINGTON, March 15.—(P)—Opponents of NRA gained new ammunition today from testimony of S. Clay Williams, retiring head of the national recovery board, that maintenance of labor standards in the industry may crush the inefficient businessyman.

The North Carolina tobacco manufacturer, testifying before the senate finance committee, further complicated the task facing those who want to continue NRA by warning that the code structure could not be extended without some relaxation of the anti-

Senatorial critics of NRA listened to these two statements gleefully, convinced they would carry weight in a congress already troubled by charges that monopolistic tendencies of the recovery law make it difficult for small business to survive.

PASADENA, Cal., March 15.—(A?)

If the American league pennant race could be turned into a joint debate the Chicago White Sox would win. It is not surprising, perhaps, that the Sox are the most talkative players in the circuit, for their manager, James J. Dykes, is far and away the most accomplished orator in the active playing ranks of the game.

The most notable single acquisition made by Chicago between seasons was Catcher Luke Sewell, formerly of Cleveland and Washington. He never looked better than he has this spring. With him behind the bat, the yard-stick of baseball efficiency "through the middle" can be confidently placed by Dykes, showing Sewell, Minter Hayes, at second, and Al Simmons, in center. It's a baseball adage that the catcher, second baseman and center fielder must be first class for a team to win. ment, it was learned Friday. Cash prizes will be given to the winning pros, with suitable trophies and awards for the amateurs.

It is an added attraction to the two-day event, moved up to March 30-31 instead of an early April date, and should prove one of the most interesting features of the three-day golf learned and the company to divide them up because there weren't enough to divide, and so we kept those who have made the best showing on one Addition of the pro-amateur was made possible through the co-operation by putting them with a team which might lose. THAT BOWLING TOURNAMENT.

Almost 200 citizens of our town will participate in The Constitution's third annual St. Patrick's Day handicap doubles bowling tournament this afternoon and tonight.

This is, the boys inform me, the largest entry for a doubles tournament in the history of bowling, and the Bowling Blue Book rates it as a national record. It was a record in 1934 and this year's entry is far superior. Which is but natural. The largest circulation produces Bowling is a great exercise and very humbling to one who thinks it easy to knock over those pins. It's worth watching, the greatest bowling of the year in tonight's tournament.

The pain is gone from the pitching arm of the best southpaw Brooklyn has had since the days of Nap Rucker.

"Watty" has a hop on his fast one again. And all's right with the world of Casey (Svengali) Stengel, manager of the flock, who had considerable to do with it.

PARIS, March 15.—(P)—Fred Perry's dream of playing in tennis movies and at the same time retaining his amateur standing to defend the Davis cup for Great Britain, was shattered by the International Tennis Federation today.

After a red-hot session behind closed doors, the Czechoslovakian proposal to modify the rules to sanction the appearance of amateurs in tennis action films failed to receive the necessary two-thirds majority from the delegates. The vote was 42 for and 41 against.

Walters Anderson, a delegate from the United States, led the opposition to the proposal which, he declared, the columbus last year. Three clubs in the American association were seeking him.

They changed Clark's windup, making him throw his arm way back behind his head in the windup. Clark started pitching. There was no pain. Yesterday he went four innings against the regulars and they got two singles. Al Lopez, his catcher in the big 1932 year, got one of them. "Shucks," said Clark, "he knows my stuff to good, that's why."

"He's as good right now as he was in 1932," says Lopez.

"His control is perfect. His curve's just as big. The fast one's hopping."

So the 31-year-old southpaw who wept in the dressing rooms of 1933 and 1934 out of sheer chagrin at the hopelessness of the situation is singing in the showers again.

Moore Sees Need for Fence After Watching Long Wallops.

By Jimmy Jones.

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla., March DATIONA BEACH, Fla., March 15.—It wasn't exactly on the program, for this was supposed to be a show for batterymen only the first week down here, but Prince Henry Oana, the swarthy swatter from Hawaii, stepped out and stole the show at today's workout of the Atlanta Crackers Crackers.

The Prace, although admonished several times by Eddie Moore, the manager, that there was to be no batting practice before next Tuesday, forgot himself today and started hitting home runs to the great glee of the natives who were becoming somewhat bored with the endless pepper games of the pitchers. It happened after the rest of the players had gone into the showers. The prince lagged behind, fondling his new bat. As soon as the stocky Mr. Moore had disappeared around the corner of the dugout, Henry stationed himself at the plate and inveigled Dick Niehaus, the left-handed pitching coach, who was puttering around out on the mound, to throw him a few.

SOARS TO BANK.

SOARS TO BANK. At the first crash of the Prince's bat, Mr. Moore poked a startled and inquisite face out of the dugout door just in time to see the ball soaring out toward the bank of the river in left field—a good 390 feet away.

The left-handed Niehaus wound up and let go another pitch. This time Oans sent one soaring to deep left center, even farther than the first ball. Manager Moore forgot all about dressing and came out to watch the Hiwaiian in action.

dressing and came out to watch the Hiwaiian in action.

"Hey, he yelled, looking around for Ray Clancy, the keeper of the grounds. "We're going to have to build some fences out there in left field, or this Oana is going to lose all our balls in the river."

The natives, who had said that none of their semi-pros could hit a ball out to the water, were equally startled. The Daytons park has no fences, being surrounded almost entirely by the river, which makes a picturesque bend around the diamond.

NEW YORK, March 15.—(P)—
"Iron man" performances will be in order tomorrow night when the Knights of Columbus stage the traditional finale to the indoor track and field campaigns at Madison Square Garden with many of the nation's greatest athletes competing in the sixteenth annual meet.

The succession of "iron man" acts will involve Glenn Cunningham, king of the milers; Chuck Hornbostel, ace of the middle distance runners; Elton Brown, of the Kansas City A. C., one of the new sensations of 1935, and Glen Dawson. National A. A. U. 1,000-meter champion from Skiatook, Okla.

Cunningham, who established the indoor record of 4:08.4 in winning the Columbian mile last year, will go after not only his favorite event but also will seek victory in the 1,000-yard. In the shorter race, the fleet Kansan will meet Hornbostel, beaten only once indoors in the 600-1,000 sphere in three years, Brown, Dawson and John Thompson, of Manhattan.

Harvey, Carminati Star

In Monte Carlo Setting
The old triangle, done in a very pretty setting, is "Let's Live Tonight," with Lilian Harvey and Tullio Carminati, which opened Friday at the Rialto. The French Riviera, luxurious yachts, a glimpse of the innards at yachts, a glimpse of the innards at Monte Carlo, with one passionate evening in the arms of a man who loves 'em and leaves 'em. All this for Lilian, whose only charm for this reviewer is her Diedon fracilence.

ian, whose only charm for this reviewer is her Dresden fragileness.

Carminati, evidently supposed to be irresistible to women, would have proved more interesting if he'd used his voice more. The theme song constitutes all the vocal music, and it's something about grabbing love before it passes by.

The romance begins when Tullio's gambling instinct, or perhaps it was a system, rescues Lilian's last son at roulette and the croupier shoves her the song that they finally find themselves broke. And worst of all. Tony is out of ideas for new books.

Leaving New York, Tony and his wife return to an old plantation once owned by Grandfather Barrett. It is here that Tony finds the inspiration for his best story—a true life narrative which deals with peculiar customs and traditions as practiced by a neighboring Polish-American family.

Manya, played by Anna Sten, a o, however, being accustomed to taking his loves lightly, scrams the next morning, probably from force of habit, leaving a terse but romantic note of farewell. There's nothing for note of farewell. There's nothing for Lilian to do but go home, broken-hearted. Here Fate pulls one of her well-known tricks and throws her into the arms of the Italian Tullio's brother—who has been brought up in England, and at the betrothal feast Tullio shows up after a round-the-world search.

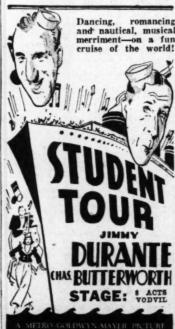

Brother love conquers, but it winds up fine for Tullio and Lilian, but not so good for the younger brother.

Major Victory for Wets.

In obtaining the May 15 date for the referendum repealist leaders won what was considered a major victory. In speaking against the bill at committee hearing's both in the house and senate dry leaders had asked that the vote be scheduled as late as possible, some of them, including the Right Rev. William N. Ainsworth, bishop of the North Georgia Conference of the Methodist church, asking that it be held late in September.

There was some talk Friday night of sending the bill to Governor Talmadge, at McRae, in order that he may study it while resting at his farm. Several weeks ago in a speech at Macon, the governor said that when the bill was enacted he would take it to Pi Kappa Alpha Founders Banquet Held Here; Alabaman Is Guest Speaker.

The 67th anniversary of the founding of the National Pi Kappa Alpha, college social fraternity was observed by 125 alumni and active members at a founders banquet at the Atlanta Athletic Club Friday might.

The guest speaker for the occasion was John J. Sparkman, prominent attorney of Huntsville, Ala, who is president of the ninth district of the fraternity. In his talk Mr. Sparkman reviewed the steady growth of Pi Kappa Alpha from its beginning March 15, 1868, at the University of Virginia, where it was founded by five students who after returning from the Confederate army, entered the university and perpetuated their years of friendship through its organization.

Today Pi Kappa Alpha is nationwide with a membership of over 25,000 men and 80 active chapters located in the leading colleges and universities of the United States.

Elbert P. Tuttle, Atlanta attorney, and national president of Pi Kappa Alpha, acted as toastmaster for the occasion. The other speakers were Robert M. McFarland Jr., national

MRS. JOHN K. OTTLEY.

By Irene Jackson Watts, Executive Secretary Tallulah Falls School.
Someone has said that "the glory of life is to love; to give not to get; to serve and not be served." This expressive quotation is aptly applied today to Mrs. John K. Ottley, upon her birthday anniversary. She is one of Georgia's pre-eminent citizens and outstanding clubwomen—but best known and loved by thousands as the friend of humanity. Her golden heart folds the hearts and lives of a future posterity that will rise up and call her blessed. Education has been foremost in her thought for others. She realized that no human being could meet the responsibilities to be encountered in the walk through life until they were fortified by the advantages resulting from the mental training gained through the harmonious development of our faculties.

May God's blessings and abundant Georgia's pre-eminent citizens and out-standing clubwomen—but best known and loved by thousands as the friend of humanity. Her golden heart folds the world in a love that has drawn to her people from every walk in life including the young and the old, the learned and the unlearned, the poor, the distressed and the troubled. May God's blessings and abundant habbiness be hers! In offering these felicitations to Mrs. Ottley, the follow-ing question respectively.

of health, yearning for a last reunion with his family . . . who, one day paused at her door. Tired, penniless and discouraged, he could go no further. Like the good Samaritan, she healed his wounds by serving him with cooling liquids, gave him material aid, and sent him on his way rejoicing, because on the morrow he would be reunited with his loved ones.

Perhaps it was the young student, bewildered and tossed about on life's threshold—groping for the one chance—who called to her! Insurmountable obstacles had crushed life's ambitions, but through her loving compassion, sympathetic understanding and unflinching courge, she wrested from life their opportunity to attempt and achieve!

correspondent writes bout five years ago her husband had business reverses that necesaltated their giving up a lovely home taking their children out of fashion able schools and adjusting themselves generally to a new scale of living. They were all good sports, ecepted their reduced circumstances in the best spirit, believing that the husband and father would soon get on his feet and the old life be retored. But now after five years it is borne upon them that the present status is to be the permanent one, that the old life of luxury and case is gope forever. This cor-respondent would like some discussion of the compensations of comages. It makes for independence. It gives a sense of assurance and security. It enables people to cushion themesives with all sorts of comforts. It makes it possible for parents to provide and provi curity. It enables people to cushion themeslves with all sorts of comforts. It makes it possible for parents to provide splendid opportunities for their children. The pocket book nerve well padded tends to make a person phelgmatic and comfortable, while an exposed pocketbook nerve quivers and aches all the time and is likely to make one irritable an uncomfortable. Everybody prefers to have a padded pocketbook nerve.

There is much quoted and heartily sented sentence from the lips of the Carpenter of Nazareth: "It is the Carpenter of Nazareth: "It is hard for a rich man to enter the kingdom of heaven." Perhaps one of the compensations of poverty lies here: the way to the kingdom of heaven is made easier. Oh, not the heaven of the hereafter alone, but the heaven of the here and now. It begins in the home. It is the homes of comparative poverty that family relationships are warmest and closest. The necessity for hard work and sacriffice binds father and mother and children together. It is in such homes that children are taught that gentleness and kindness, charity and courtesy are more important than fine clothes and fashionable furbelows. It is in such homes that children are taught the true value children are taught the true value of religion and education as cures for all the ills of the world. They are initiated into the realm of books and culture for these things must constitute entertainment for the

There is no money in the bank for trips and so home is a staying place, not a stopping place between jaunts. The evening are spent around the fireside because outside amusements cost money. Young and old find their own entertainment and become self-suffi-cient and self-reliant. The family is not involved in strenous social life, each member belonging to a different each member belonging to a different set, everyone coming and going to a different party all hours of the day and night. The family is an entity and three times a day thew gather around the meal table. If there is no servant the dishwashing and cleaning up is a group job and when the work is done they all go into the common living room for the house is small.

Children reared in homes of wealth are likely to get distorted views of life, unless their parents are wise indeed. Seeing their elders enjoying privileges and positions that come with money, they get the idea that they are entitled to anything and everything money, they get the idea that they are entitled to anything and everything his money will buy, regardless of his fitness to possess these things. They become arrogant and overbearing, through no fault of their own. When grown people or children have all their material wants supplied by the wav-ing of a wand, they soon grow in-different to spiritual values. Poor weak human nature can't stand too much prosperity without suffering for it. Rich food on the table every day will make the healthies appetite jad-ed and it is true literally and figura-

People who have had wealth and lost it find compensation in their memories of luxurious living. Poverty cannot erase these memories. Not long ago a man who had evidently had a similar experience to this correspondent's, wrote a magazine article on the pleasures money couldn't buy nor loss of money des-troy. Some of the things he men-tioned had purely spiritual value: the meeting and parting of lovers, happy play of little children. There was mentioned of the beauties of nature; sunrises, sunsets, shafts of light falling becomingly on bridge and building, the curve of a road. the shape and shade of a tree, the color of grasses and wild flowers. color of grasses and wild flowers. Then there were memories of trips to Europe that cost him nothing at The moment, but memories that he had probably spent large sums to gather. This man was making adjustment to a new life and he was finding his compensation as he went.

There is always a satisfaction in being able to take what life hands us without being embittered by it. The temptation to bitterness over loss of material possessions is undoubtedly great for many succumb to it. We try to rationalize our cowardice in a thousand ways. We say "I don't mind for myself—but I regret so much the blow to my husband's pride; I can be poor but it crucifies me to see my children denied the advanages that all my frieds' children have, advantages I had thought to give them." All of which may be true but if the bitterness is there the fact remains that we couldn't take it. And when we can material possessions is undoubtedly couldn't take it. And when we can take it this is the supreme compensaand others of our courage and character. CAROLINE CHATFIELD.

By FRANK MACMILLEN. NEW YORK, March 15 .- (A)-The pressure of general uneasiness appeared to be lightened in Wall Street today and stocks were able to rebound fractions to a couple of points, aided tractions to a couple of points, aided by a recovery in the grains.

The better tone was aided by substantially improved action of, the pound sterling in the foreign exchange market, where the British unit came back around 3 cents against the dollar. The gold currencies ruled barely steady.

The lift in wheat ranged from 1-4 to 1 1-8 cents a bushel and corn improved by 1-8 to 1-2 cent. Cetter.

The lift in wheat ranged from 1-4 to 1 1-8 cents a bushel and corn improved by 1-8 to 1-2 cent. Cotton was an unfavorable factor on market action for a time, with early declines of more than $1$ a bale, but a lift toward the close reduced the declines in the fiber to 65 to 95 cents a bale.

Soft at Midday.

Securities markets did not hold a wholly even keel throughout the session. Both bonds and stocks were somewhat soft around midday. Bonds held about even on balance, and a last-minute rally brought government obligations back to approximately the last-minute rally brought government obligations back to approximately the closing levels of the previous day.

Dun & Bradstreet's weekly review saw an arrest of previously declining trends in retail trade, and likewise reported sustained production in the automobile and tractor industries.

Tidings from the rail sector, however, were less optimistic, bearing out the forecasts made on the basis of freight movements of individual roads earlier in the week. Carloadings for the latest week were more than seasonally lower than in the previous seven-day period and substantially below the same week of 1934.

Rail stocks held well, however, buoyed by the expectation of a nearby decision of the L. C. C. on the pending application for rate increases.

Volume Drops.

Turnover in the stock exchange was below the level of the previous session, totaling 768,160 shares. The Associated Press average for 60 stocks

STOCK OPINIONS.

FENNER & BEANE—We are of the opinion that some lightening of purely frading positions would be warranted on further price advances.

BEER & CO.—Our assumption is that the raily thus far has developed out of an oversoid condition and unless the market is the recipient of favorable news, further gains will be lamited.

ABBOTT, PROCTOR & PAINE—It is questionable how far cougress will let indiationary tendencies go without making inflationary gestures which should have the effect of restoring the popularity of equities. COURTS & CO.—Stocks should show a general improvement for the time being at ult.

COURTS & CO.—Despite international conetary confusion and an inactive goods aarket, we believe the greatly enlarged aill forwardings will result in firmer rices. HUBBARD BROS. & CO. TO DOBBS &

GRAIN OPINIONS.
FENNER & BEANZ—We think wheat prices are low enough to suggest moderate buying on setbacks.

NEW YORK, March 15.—(P)—A sharp opening decline in cotton was followed by partial recoveries, on trade buying and covering. The martial partial partia ket closed very steady at net declines of 13 to 19 points.

of 13 to 19 points.

Initial prices were down 17 to 25 points, with active months selling 23 to 29 points lower during the first few minutes under heavy selling through houses with foreign connections. The volume tapered off after the close at Liverpool, and while later fluctuations were irregular the market showed a steadier tone particularly on the old crop months.

The early selling was thought to have come from houses with foreign connections representing both European and far eastern sources.

The trade buying here was accompanied by reports that a better demand had developed for spot cotton during the past few days and that the basis was firm.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON

DECLINES 8-14 POINTS NEW ORLEANS, March 15 .- (P) NEW ORLEANS, March 15.—(P) Early foreign selling and a weak Liverpool market brought about declines on the cotton market today that were not regained during the entire day. Active positions closed 8 to 14 points lower.

Volume of trading during most of the session was below the fevertsh dealings of recent sessions and there seemed to be a scarcity of both buying and selling orders.

Spots closed at 11.33 for middling, a decline of 15 points, in a quiet market.

NEW YORK March 15.—(P)—

Hampered by sluggish rails and industrials, the bond market gave and the second second dustrials, the bond market gave another indifferent performance today.

United States governments were lifeless with transfers less than $2,500,000, and with few exceptions were lower. Liberty 3 1-2s, which were called for redemption yesterday, lost principally in utility issues where some good sized advances were shown, against only a few nominal declines. American Water Works 6s were au outstanding strong point with a gain of 3 1-8 points at 67 and minor advances occurred in Detroit Edison 5s. North American 5s and Laclede Gas 5 1-2s. Bonds of Columbia Gas, Mon-tana Power and Western Union sold a trifle lower.

Bank Clearings

NEW YORK, March 15.—Bank clearings again are substantially higher. The total for the 22 leading cities in the United States for the week ended Wednesday, March 13, as reported by Dun & Bradstreet, Inc., was $5,624,416,000, against $4,807,301,000 for the same week of last year, an increase of 17.0 per cent. This contrasted with a gain of 13.3 per cent in the previous week. At New York city, clearings were $4,017,467,000, an increase of 18.0 per cent over the amount reported last year, while the aggregate for centers outside of New York York of $1,606,949,000 was 14.6 per cent higher. NEW YORK, March 15 .- Bank per cent higher.

Clearings the past week showed greater variation than in the preceding week at some of the outside cities; also than in some of the earlier weeks of the year. The total next to the preceding week and one week in January was at the top for this year to date. The reduction for the second week of March from the high record of the first one was only $323,579,000, whereas for the same two weeks a year ago the amount for the second week of the month showed a decline week of the month showed a decline of $441,466,000. Outside of New York the gains were the largest at Philadelphia, Pittsburgh, Chicago, De-troit, St. Louis, Kansas City and New Orleans. Figures at leading centers, compared with those of a year ago, are printed herewith; also, daily bank clearings for each month this year:

She lives with her elder sister, Breuda, her two brothers, Cliff and Bruce, and Aust Meg, in a comfortable old top-floor apartment. On the Call is a blond annew Bees Cutter, who gets a large salary atd keeps up a fine apartment at which Frank Fitch, the managing editor, is a frequent visitor. When Beess asks her to make one of a dinner party there, Tony goes to her friend, Barney Kerr, for advice. This results in a proposal, the last thing Tony wants. Sent to report a carnival at Piedmont, she meets a Mrs. Bellamy, and is astonished and thrilled to find that her husband is Larry Hellamy, the bandsome young editor of the Journal, whom she met while job-hunting. Ruth Bellamy, a frail woman, grieving over the death of her little son, is 10 years older than her husband. The exome fast friends. By phonling and pretending to be a friend, Tony confirms the Fortengagement. As she turns her story in to Greenwood, her city editor, she mention that Beliamy told her his Journal may be combined with the Eaminer. Her story in to Greenwood, her city editor, she mention that Beliamy told her his Journal may be combined with the Eaminer. Her story in to Greenwood, her city editor, she mention that Beliamy told her his Journal may be combined with the Eaminer. Her story in to Ruth about something ene. and Kuth says its publication has ruined Larry's plans. NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

"Oh, did you tell her?" Ruth's eyebrows went up as she glanced at Larry.
"We were talking shop."

For every night had to end with a talk with Brenda, while they were cold-creaming their faces and wandering about from room to room. Tony, typewriting away busily in the newspaper office, in the warm black rainy night, thought of a dozen things about 10 minutes ago but he may have some work. Brende with a talk with Brenda, while they were looked rather frowzy and florid to-night; she had been dining and the week of the scent of food and drink was on her with a talk with Brenda, while they were looked rather frowzy and florid to-night; she had been dining and the at talk with Brenda, while they were looked rather frowzy and florid to-night; she had been dining and the at talk with Brenda, while they were looked rather frowzy and florid to-night; she had been dining and the scent of food and drink was on her with a talk with Brenda, while they were looked rather frowzy and florid to-night; she had been dining and the scent of food and drink was on her with the scent of food and drink was on her with the clear patter for a scent of food and drink was on her with the clear patter for the scent of food and drink was on her with the clear patter for a scent of food and drink was on her with the clear patter for the scent of food and drink was on her with the clear patter for the scent of food and drink was on her with the clear patter for the scent of food and drink was on her with the clear patter for the scent of food and drink was on her with the clear patter

It was merely that when he had come with her into the hall and held her coat for her, Larry had said—or no, he hadn't said much, hadn't said anything seelly. anything—really— He had nodded to Chevalier in dismissal, and that in itself had some-how made her heart beat hard; the expression on Larry's face had been expression on Larry's face had been so—so authoritative—so manlike—And then he had said—well, he had only said, "good-bye, Tony. And thanks, always thanks, for what you do for us all—"

But his look, as he said it—ah, that was the thing one couldn't tell Brenda, nor how it made one feel, nor how one remembered it.

Tony, in the bright noisy hot newspaper office found her work constantly interrupted by the need there was to stop short and remember it.

Her telephone rang; the obliging Linda Ford had an egagement to "Listen, girl, it's a profound secret of course, but I got it by ac-cident and I'm not bound to keep

"Patricia Porter!" Tony breathed.

"Patricia Porter!" Tony breatneu.
If she could scoop the engagement of Patricia Porter she would be safe in Greeny's good graces for weeks.
She had got a good interview that afternoon; she was holding her own amazingly. But the Patricia Porter scoop would be the triumph of a sea-"To Lee Carolan Scott, of course."

"Of course. I'll tell you how new." The rich confidential voice the old society reporter broke into laughter. "His brother's wife was laughter. "His brother's wife was buying an engagement cup in the 'White House' while I was waiting for Louisette there this afternoon, and she sent it to Patsy. But mind you keep me out of it."

"Oh, that clinches it, then! And I'm so much obliged to you. I'll follow it right up!"

low leather hassock, with her arms hugging her knees and her eyes on the fire, fell into musing. It was felicity to be here safe from rain and cold. Life would seem odd, now, without Larry and Ruth.

"Why can't you stay and dine with us, Tony?" Ruth said.

"I can't. I've got a woman to interview across the street. And I've got to go back to the office."

"Tony, will you call me in the morning about the show on Friday night?"

"I will, the first thing."

brightly. "Is Patay there? I can't wait to hear all about it!"

"No; she's dining with Lee's family tonight. But we're all so delighted!" the voice said complacently. And then suddenly! "Who is this talking?"

Tony silently broke the connection; presently she was telephoning the house of Scott. Was Miss Porter there?

"Patsy darling, I'm thr-r-rilled!" she exclaimed when the happy accents of the bride-to-be came over the wire. "When's it to be?"

"Who is it? Who told you?" Patsy ivory and above the low forehead her hair had been curled by the wet day into a very cloud of filmy tails and curls. She had curled her body up, child fashion, and was hugging her knees; the beautiful slim firm line for breast and hips, the slender ankles, the glowing vital beauty were enhanced by the contrast that was so close "What have you two been talking about?" Ruth asked.

"Larry's possibly going over to the Examiner," Tony answered with animation.

"And the was not a dozen things she must say to her sister; Brenda would be relieved to hear that Larry had definitely adivsed against the fainting-in-the-street assignment. And the Clairmont interview and the Clairmont interview and the various small events of the day should all be retailed.

But there was one experience of which Tony wouldn't tell her. For one thing it wasn't important and for an "sunshine gospel" revivalist movement about. The sunshine tent, with its preachers and singers, its organ mustical breakers and singers, its organ mustical breakers. preachers and singers, its organ mu-sic and hymnbooks and benches, had settled down for a stay on the out-skirts of the city and Milly was its skirts of the city and Milly was its innocently preaching and exhorting little press agent. Tony had regaled the home dinner table for several nights with accounts of Milly. Tony had to rewrite all of Milly's stories. Now she regarded Bess with a growing change in her expression. It altered from scornful and superior indifference to surprise and interest.

altered from scornful and superior indifference to surprise and interest.
"But-good heavens, Bess," she murmured. "She surely isn't interested in Mr. Fitch?"
"She had dinner with them Sunday over in Piedmont. She's got him praying. Him, after all he's done!" Bess muttered bitterly, her rouged lips trembling. "Why, he's a skunk, Fitch is; I never would have looked at him if he hadn't said he was going to get a divorce—all that."

"Oh, that clinches it, then! And I'm so much obliged to you. I'll follow it right up!"

Tony clicked her telephone back into place, and referred to her notebook of social data.

"Mrs. Olney Parks. That's the Porter girl's aunt. West-zero-seven-seven-seven." Tony mused dialing busily. She recognized the dowager's rich voice a moment later. "This is Elinor Blah-blah, Mrs. Parks," she said

A LITTLE SATURDAY TALK.

The month of March was named for the cruel war god, Mars; but there is something more cheerful about it. It is the month in which spring begins.

Next week daylight will start to last longer than darkness, for the first time this year. In other words, there will be a little more than 12 hours between sunrise and sunset.

Next week will also bring "the first day of spring." The weather may not be very springlike on the coming Thursday; but whether it is or not,

Now amiest gleeful shouts the son of Arkeesh emerged from the temple below and walked toward the Fiery Pillar, his boyish cries of terror ringing through the ravine. As he came near to it, he staggered and put his hands before his eyes. Yet he continued to approach.

rae English girl knew that the mysterious rays from the fiery column would soon accomplish the sacrifice. He would surely die—a death of torture. Suddenly a desperate cry burst from her lips: "Stop!" Niarchus turned to her, his evil eyes ablaze with bitter suspicion!
